Transforming Wilmington's training offering for the digital age

Wilmington plc

If I were to describe the digital classroom that we now have, I would say "revolutionary". It is advanced technology but is so easy for us to use.

The solution

Wilmington installed a 36-seat weConnect virtual classroom and a control room. The studio is brimming with flexible tools and features to deliver immersive lessons, including:

- Six x 72-inch screens – providing a video wall to see students up close
- Three x 32-inch screens – one shows timer, one shows a confidence screen – showing lecturers what the participants can see
- Seven cameras and ceiling microphones
- Advanced directional audio systems for natural face to face interaction
- A green screen for custom backdrops and an interactive whiteboard
- A mobile electronic lectern with two touchscreens: one control the session and the other to display content
- Wireless headsets and microphones for total freedom of movement

The challenge

As part of their digital transformation, Wilmington plc needed a powerful solution to offer highly engaging, broadcast-quality remote training experiences to more than 20,000 yearly participants; and at the same time provide a seamless, user-friendly and more natural method of training to their instructors.

The benefits

-  No travel time or costs
-  Global participation
-  Participant engagement metrics
-  Multiple camera views for visual engagement
-  Interactive tools, enhanced breakout rooms, quizzes & polling

Loved the different views such as presenter, individual, classroom etc. and then the fact you could raise your hand. It was really good and slick. Picture and sound quality was great and I honestly loved the session!
